I will refer it to Euripides, Sophocles, and Menander. POPE. I am afraid of those judges i for I fee them continually walking hand in hand, and engaged in the most friendly conversation, with Corneille, Racine, and Moliere. Our dramattick writers seem, in general, not so fond of their company: they sometimes shove rudely by them, and give themselves airs of superiority. They flight their reprimands, and laugh at their precepts. In short, they will be tried by their country alone; and that judicature is partial. BOIIE AU. I will press this question no further.--But let me ask you, to which of our rival tragedians, Racine and Corneille, do you give the preference? Pope. The sublimest plays of Corneille are, in my judgement, equalled by the Athalia of Racine; and the tender passions are certainly touched by that elegant and most pathetick...
